

HSIA WORK-STUDY INFORMATION

Every work-study contract at Humanities Spring is worked out on an individual basis. Students might do anything from washing windows to organizing our library loft or from student-teaching to helping our Italian cook make Italian cakes for evening serate. We think work is a learning experience, and every student at Humanities Spring has a half-hour daily chore, whether or not he or she is part of the work-study program. We try to create work-study schedules which are fruitful for the work-study student, as well as the HSIA community at large. Occasionally, we award small scholarships to supplement work-study.

The Finances

High school students may apply for up to 500 dollars of work-study. College students may apply for a partial or full work-study scholarship. Full work-study schedules require energy and determination. Several students have been at HSIA on full work-study scholarships; they have found their summers tiring, at times, as well as fruitful and stimulating. We calculate student work at seven dollars and fifty cents an hour. If you are applying, for example, for five hundred dollars in work-study, you must do approximately 65 work-study hours.

The Dates

Work-study students often do some of their work the week after the program ends. Students who are over 18 sometimes also do work-study in August.

The Work

Most of the work-study help we need is in kitchen duty, housework, driving, and maintenance. There is some student-teaching and gardening available for students with experience, and occasional tutoring or homework help for our Italian students.

Kitchen duty: helping our Italian cook, washing dishes, making cookies or cakes, sandwich duty before our day-trips, dinner duty. Housework: laundry with the HSIA machine, sweeping, etc. -- whatever housekeeper needs on a given day. Driving: you must have an international driver's license (easy to get in the USA with a regular American license), know how to drive a stick shift, and be confident on country roads. Maintenance : varies most each year. Could be: washing windows, doing heavy work in HSIA garden, sewing curtains, making book-ends, etcetera.

Student-teaching: varies, could be helping to correct Italian 1 homework papers, tutoring Italian students in English, or giving a class or mini-course on a HSIA-related or HSNY-related topic.
